A Call to Prayer and Intercession

E. M. Bounds, on Prayer

Man must pray to God if love for God is to exist.

In reality the denial of prayer is a denial of God himself.

Prayer puts God to work!

Prayer is a high privilege, a royal prerogative.

Neglect of prayer has always brought loss of faith, loss of love, and loss of prayer.

The closet is the garden of faith.

The men of spiritual mold and might always value prayer.

Character, official duty, reputation, and life, all should be shaped by prayer.

We pray as we live: we live as we pray.

Straight praying is never born of crooked conduct.

It is neither words, nor thoughts, nor ideas, nor feelings, which shape praying, but character and conduct.

When character and conduct are at a low ebb, praying can but barely live, much less thrive.

Men must pray, and put strength and heart into their praying.

Nothing can take the place of prayer, and nothing can atone for the neglect of praying.

Prayer means to stay with God till you are like him.

Prayer is intended for God's ear.

Is anything too hard for God?

The royal way to enlarge personal grace is to pray for others.

God shows himself to the man who prays.

The men who have made a success of praying have made a business of praying.

God's watchmen must always and everywhere be men of prayer.

He "who plows not in his closet, will never reap in his pulpit."

"The Christian's trade is praying" declared Martin Luther.

A pulpit without a closet will always be a barren thing.

There is no school in which to learn to pray in public, but in the closet.

Prayer is the language of a man burdened with a sense of need.

The forerunner of the gospel, and that which prepares the way, is prayer.

Unbelief and prayerlessness go together.

It takes prayer in the pulpit and prayer in the pew to make preaching arresting, life-giving, and soul-saving.

The Word of God is inseparably linked with prayer.

Devotion to God and devotion to prayer are one and the same thing.

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee"

A holy life would not be so difficult and a rare thing if our praying was not so brief, cold, and superficial.

I went to my God and prayed diligently and received what I needed. -gm/wm
